VOLUME II No. 50

Wednesday, October 8, 1980

The first phase of a multi-layer pour for the library-cultural centre took place on Monday. Workmen placed the bottom layer of cement in the forms. Several more layers of cement with reinforcing steel rods, and a layer of Styrofoam will be added to the pad before it is complete. Township council has requested that the pad preparation work be completed by next Tuesday.

Snowmobile group looks forward to active year

While the 1980-81 snowmobiling season won't be underway until the snow flies, the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association is well on its way to planning this year's activity.

The annual meeting of the organization was held two weekends ago and last Saturday evening the directors selected the slate of officers to serve for the season.

Tom Prentice was returned as president of the organization. He will be assisted by Steve Barry as vice president, Doug Tedford treasurer, Jan Tedford secretary, Ed Peltcher trails' chairman and Norm Gemmell the membership chairman. Also serving on the board of directors for the coming year are Jack Snell, Larry McKnight, Barry Stewart, Dale MacDonald, Brian Hunter, Tom Thompson, Guard Campbell and Tom Moffatt.

According to the president, the association will be pursuing as active a program as in previous years even though, as Prentice pointed out, assistance from the Ontario government has not increased.

"We will be attempting to maintain and groom the same number of trails we have in previous year," Tom said, "but the Ministry of Natural Resources has definitely indicated there will be no increase in our allotment this season." The provincial funds are an important part of the association's budget in maintaining and expanding the Haliburton County trail network.

The president noted that the club has sought assistance from other sources, including Wintario and other make-work schemes sponsored by senior levels of government. "We haven't heard anything on these applications as yet, but we continue to hope," Prentice stated.

He also noted that membership fees, which are also used for trail maintenance, have been coming in at a good rate. The club is also looking to expand its membership base. "We estimate that only 8% of those people using our trails are members of the association," Prentice said. "These are public trails and we welcome everyone who wants to use them. But, the funds needed to groom and cut new trails must come from somewhere. Imagine the effort we could make if even 50% of the trail users were association members."

The spokesman noted that the Grey-Bruce and Orillia snowmobile associations have closed their trails to the public and are available now for members only. He pointed out that such organizations will lose whatever support they could get from the provincial government, but they also increase their revenue by ensuring those who use the trails are helping to pay for them through association dues. "We are definitely not considering the possibility of closing the trails," Prentice said. "The sport of snowmobiling has an important impact on the winter economy of this county and our association believes the trails should be for everyone."

In an effort to boost club membership, those who are now members of the association will be urged to find at least one other person to join the group.

The grants and assistance the group has applied for, if approved, will be used for trail marking, obtaining the permission of landowners over which the trail passes and possibly constructing a number of rest areas.

Under the new trespass laws, the association will have to seek permission from the landowners again. The laws were just recently enacted in Ontario and they eliminate the liability landowners had to bear if their land was used by such associations as the Haliburton County group. The new signing also follows from the legislation with distinctive markers being erected to indicate where snowmobiling is and is not permitted.

The proposed rest areas would be located along major trails and provide a spot where snowmobilers can stop

Questions for candidates circulated by Chamber

The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce has released a suggested list of questions area businessmen could consider asking those individuals who stand for municipal office this November. The questions were included in a newsletter mailed to members last week.

A report at last month's county council meeting that the Chamber intended to quiz candidates on various points raised a furor among the present reeves and deputy reeves. They claimed the Chamber should not be involved in municipal politics and suggested it should "stick to promoting tourism."

The Chamber's executive announced a short while after the county council meeting that it intended to go ahead with the questionnaire.

Under the heading, "If you don't vote—you don't count", the Chamber newsletter explains that the questions were designed to help members decide how a candidate stood on various points affecting the business community. "There are no right or wrong answers to these questions," the Chamber newsletter states, "only what you think is right. Give some thought to what answer you as a businessman are looking for, then ask them." the newsletter stresses that the Chamber does not endorse any particular candidate or take a side on particular issues.

The list of questions for candidates for municipal office suggested by the Chamber read as follows:

1. What in your view, is the role of business and businessmen in community develop-

Average high	18.6
Average low	6.2
Average for the month	12.4
Average for September 1979	13.2
Highest temperature (Sept. 4)	25.5
Lowest temperature (Sept. 27)	-4.5
Rainfall	2.8 inches 71.5 mm
Days with thunderstorms	2

September was quite a pleasant month, very much like last September. A comparison of the average temperature with the figure from last year shows a difference of just under a full degree.

As usual several nights during the month saw frosts nipping at vegetable gardens and flowers. The first frost of September was recorded on the twelfth. Last year the first frost came September 8.

Rainfall this past month was average.

2. What, in your view, is the role of municipal or county councils in the licensing and regulation of private business?

3. (a) What policies would you suggest to encourage a good spirit of co-operation between your council and the business community?

(b) In your view, what type of role do you feel the Chamber of Commerce should play in representing the viewpoints and problems of our individual members at various levels of government?

4. What, if any, is the municipal or county council's role in relating local business concerns to provincial or federal levels of government?

5. What steps would you suggest to encourage further economic development in the county relative to:

(a) broadening the tourist business in both size and length of season?

(b) encouraging increased commercial activity.

(c) attracting clean light industrial development.

(d) improving the potential to attract development investment to the county.

6. What specific steps do you suggest to accommodate the legitimate concerns of those who would oppose economic development, particularly in regard to manufacturing, in spite of the economic benefits?

Considering the significant portion of the budget that relates to education, what specific qualifications are appropriate for school board trustee?

8. Some organizations such

Indian art provides unique 'insight'

An interesting and informative lecture was held at the Rail's End Gallery Friday night. Professor Harvey McCue, teacher of Native Studies at Trent University in Peterborough, spoke to a small gathering about the connection between 'x-ray' art and ancient Algonkian cultural and religious beliefs.

The theory that this unusual art form, showing the interior of the animal in a rather stylized form, stems from the religious background of this particular group of Indians, is Professor McCue's own. To his knowledge, no one else has ever proposed this particular idea. After viewing the art and hearing the lecture, the theory made unquestionable sense.

Algonkian Indians are members of six tribes - Cree, Ojibway, Sawltau, Mississauga, Odawa, and Chippewa. Until the 1840's or 50's, when they were "Christianized", their whole life revolved around nature; animals in particular. They believed that all living things possessed a spirit and therefore strove to live in harmony with nature by being deeply respectful to all things.

The hierarchy of spirits included "boss spirits", which ruled their own species and dictated the behavior of and toward that species. For instance, should an animal be treated cruelly, the "boss spirit" might make his animals unavailable for a time as punishment. The people at that time, being totally dependent on hunting and fishing for their livelihood, quite naturally tried to avoid offending these spirits at all costs.

But besides this fear of reprisal, their respect for animals was based on their remarkable adaptability. They obviously had learned how to conquer the harsh North American climate and the Algonkians observed them studiously in order to determine how to best insure their own survival.

Contact with animals was desirable for this reason, but also because any animal might be a Pawaganak in disguise. Pawaganaks were at the apex of the spirit hierarchy. They were perceived as being "super" people with "super" abilities. Representing each of the major elements, they were all knowledgeable and all powerful. Metamorphosis was one of the powers possessed by Pawaganaks. They could take on any shape, thus the Indians further desired interaction with animals in the hope that one might be a Pawaganak who would impart some of his knowledge.

Professor McCue mentioned that even today, some of the older generation insist that ancient members of their family witnessed such transformations.

Although most of these ancient beliefs have dissipated since the mid-nineteenth century, they still live on in stories and legends. These, Professor McCue maintains, form the basis of Algonkian x-ray art.

The Algonkian school originated with Norval Morrisseau in the early nineteen fifties. It is an extremely popular art form at the present time, as the prices of some of the paintings indicate. Animals are depicted, usually in very vivid colors. Inside the animal's outline are a series of lines or flowing shapes representing the interior of the animal, thus the term x-ray art.

Professor McCue stressed the two major components of this art form, namely, a preoccupation with animals, and the flowing lines linking various parts of the paintings or indicating the interior of these animals. These lines and shapes, he feels, are an attempt to represent metamorphoses.

The importance of animals, and metamorphoses are central to both the ancient religion and the modern art form. This is the basis of Professor McCue's theory. Seeing is believing.

The display remains at the Gallery until October 12th, and is well worth viewing.

Native art shows both the outer form and an interpretation of the hidden shape.

Professor Harvey McCue, centre, discusses his interpretation of Native art currently on display at the Rail's End Gallery in Haliburton. The professor addressed a small crowd Friday evening on various aspects of native drawing. He teaches Native studies at Trent University in Peterborough.

Eakins seeks health funding probe

John Eakins, M.P.P. has joined with Sean Conway, M.P.P. for Renfrew North and Liberal Health Critic, in calling for a legislative investigation of the funding of public hospitals in Ontario.

Mr. Conway has served notice that when the House convened this week, he and his Liberal colleagues will demand the immediate investigation of the effects of government restraint upon the public hospital sector. Mr. Conway has suggested that these hearings be undertaken by the Social Development Committee and that they begin not later than the end of October.

"My colleagues and I are alarmed at the crisis of confidence which has developed over our public hospitals and their ability to meet the community need," Eakins said. It is clear to me that the Davis Government has created a situation of critical proportions and one which must be looked into immediately. In May-June, 1979, the Social Development Committee undertook an examination of this subject matter and many of us at that time felt that the Provincial Government was underfunding our hospitals to a dangerous degree.

"In recent days several people from within the health-care field have indicated that all is not well with current levels of funding and that serious problems are in the making. The Legislature has a duty to investigate this matter and I see it as our top priority in the opening weeks of the fall session."

Recognizing the danger

As residents of Haliburton County, we all enjoy a closeness with nature which is envied by many who live in metropolitan centres of this country. Indeed, the rugged natural setting of this county is one of the attractions which draws visitors and those seeking the solitude which an affinity with nature can evoke.

While this easy access to nature can provide an important attraction to tourists and a welcome avenue of escape for those who are fortunate enough to have more permanent roots in the Highlands, it can also be a dangerous and forbidding enemy. This point was tragically underlined this past weekend when an elderly Haliburton resident, who, as a former trapper, had no doubt shared a special relationship with nature, lost his life when he became confused and lost in dense forest.

The woods of Haliburton County provide innumerable opportunities for developing an intimate relationship with nature. In any of the four seasons there are vistas to be treasured, glimpse of wildlife and plant life to be enjoyed. These opportunities await all those who are willing to seek them out and, we believe, one's life is enriched by such contacts.

However, any excursion into the forest opens potentially dangerous consequences for the unprepared. Nature is a cruel arbiter, particularly for the novice or for those who court her with little regard for their own safety.

By all means, enjoy the excitement and beauty of the natural world we are amply blessed with here. But don't allow yourself to be lulled into a false sense of security that can prove to be your downfall.

What do you think?

I sincerely hope that the Canadian Railway Transport Commission has not granted permission to abandon the Lindsay-Haliburton line.

Hearings were held recently in Lindsay and Haliburton at which many local municipalities argued forcefully for its retention, particularly as there is a great potential for mining in northern Victoria and Haliburton counties.

One large mining company has been prospecting for two years, and has bought an option on 5,000 acres. There are others. Naturally they would cease operations unless rail facilities were available.

The service beyond Kinmount was stopped as the result of a wash out in 1978. CN sent a representative (not a professional engineer), and one diver to assess the damage, who reported that it would cost $75,000 to repair. The County hired a firm of engineering consultants who sent an engineer and two divers. Their estimate was closer to $15,000, possibly less.

The Minden Times of September 24th, reveals that the Township of Sommerville had approached CN five years ago to buy the Kinmount station. They were told by CN it would first be offered to Parks Canada.

This suggests to me that CN had long ago decided to abandon the line, regardless of their promise to set their marketing experts to work to attract more traffic.

With the energy crunch, much shipping of bulky and heavy material could be diverted from road transport at much lower cost. Forest products from the Haliburton area could be shipped cheaper to their market.

Conceivably a weekend passenger service from Toronto to cottage country would be feasible. More jobs would be available in several sectors.

Is this the same CN that boasts "a responsibility as well as a business"?

REPORT FROM QUEEN'S PARK

By John Eakins, M.P.P.

I disagree with those who feel that there is no need or urgency for Constitutional change.

The longer this is put off, the more Ontario stands to lose at the expense of other provinces.

This debate is not something which has suddenly surfaced. It has been ongoing not for years, but decades, and perhaps the time has come, as suggested by Joe Clark, that persons other than the premiers be involved in speaking out for Canada.

Why do we need to amend our Constitution. One reason is that the BNA Act is so vague that the provinces are taking advantage of its weakness and actually dividing Canada into a number of separate countries, and Ontario is the big loser. There is a need to promote the concept of inter-provincial co-operation and a need to ensure that regional development strategies are complementary to each other rather than competitive. We must eliminate inter-provincial barriers to trade, man-power mobility and develop a true Canadian common market which serves the economic interest of all regions. At the present time, the provinces are building fences to shut out Canadians.

Many licensing regulations forbid Canadians to move from province to province. If a labourer wants to move from Victoria-Haliburton to Newfoundland and get a job in the oil industry, he probably will not get one because the Newfoundland government has established a registry of workers which gives Newfoundland workers first preference on those jobs.

If you want to purchase shore front property in Prince Edward Island, you cannot do so unless you are a resident of that province.

If a company in Ontario submits the lowest bid for the sale of anything in British Columbia, you will miss out unless your bid is 10% lower than the lowest bid from a British Columbia company.

In the province of Quebec, construction workers from Ontario cannot find employment.

These are only a few simple examples of the way provinces have split Canada in recent years into ten separate fiefdoms. It is now

In Col. 3:5 the Bible says, "Be ye thankful."

A great singer, knowing that he was on tour to a certain city was exposed to what he thought was hardship. The hotel expected him to sleep on a three-quarter bed, with one mattress and two pillows. He demanded a double bed, three mattresses, and eighteen pillows, "unless I obtain these, no concert," he said. So at 1:30 a.m. closets were ransacked for extra mattresses and pillows, before the singer would sing.

To-day many people must have an abundance beyond their needs before they become thankful. Often, with abundance, they seem to think God is thanked enough when not thanked at all. "Be Ye Thankful" is an imperative which we must never disregard. We must hold thankfulness in constant reverence.

I

Inquiries regarding thankfulness

Are you thankful?
Does your heart, like David's, go out to God in gratitude as you meditate on God's mercies shown you all your life?

Do you thank God for Spiritual and temporal blessings abundantly bestowed?

Do you receive daily benefits without acknowledging their source -- without remembering that, "Every good and perfect gift cometh from above?"

Do you thoughtfully contemplate the providential care of God and give thanks unto the Lord, remembering He, "giveth us richly all things to enjoy?"

Since "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord" (Ps. 92:1), do you know that it is both ungrateful and unbecoming not to give thanks?

Do you know that you can never pass through the Day or approach God without cause for gratitude? That thankfulness glorifies God? That thankfulness is the declarative mood of gratitude?

The Bible says: "Continue in prayer -- with thanksgiving (Col. 4:2) "With thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." (Phil. 4:6). "Daniel...Gave thanks before his God." (Dan. 6:10). "Offer unto God thanksgiving." (Ps. 50:14).

Cicero calls gratitude the mother of Virtues. Seneca said, "He that urges gratitude pleads the cause of both God and men."

Think now of the...

II

Iniquity of unthankfulness

One of the sins charged against the false profession of the last days is that of unthankfulness.

"for men shall be...covetous...blasphemers...unthankful, unholy...fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors" (II Tim. 3:2-4) Unthankfulness is listed with covetousness and blasphemy. In Luke, God puts ingratitude along with evil. "for He is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil." (Lu. 6:35)

Ingratitude, sour and peevish, would make you believe that all good folk are dead, youth corrupt, times out of joint like a windmill twisted by a cyclone, and God a merciless tyrant.

Shakespeare wrote:
I hate ingratitude more in man
Than lying, vainness, babbling, drunkenness,
Or any taint of vice whose stong corruption
Inhabits our frail blood.

How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is
To have thankless child!

Another has said:
He that's ungrateful, has no guilt but one;
All other crimes may pass for virtues in him.

We condemn the nine lepers who came not back to thank Jesus for healing -- and yet put ourselves in their company of cold and unfeeling gratitude. Ingratitude is a great evil -- a most common disease of humanity. Many fail more often in gratitude than in any other Christian graces.

But we should note the...

III

Inclusiveness of thanksgiving

The Bible says, "In everything give thanks for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." (I Thess. 5:18).

"Give thanks always for ALL THINGS unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." (Eph. 5:20).

"Be ye thankful" when barns are filled with plenty and when fields are barren...when the cup of woe is bitter, when money is sufficient and when riches take to themselves wings and the wolf of want howls at the door.

Give thanks in health and in sickness -- when friends despise and forsake you...when the crepe is on the front door and the loved one has gone.

You are to give thanks when you find traitors among friends, when sickness brings prostration, when hopes wither, when you have only summer clothes in winter time, when only scraps are on your plate -- yea, IN EVERYTHING you are to give thanks!

Think of some who are...

IV

Inspirations concerning thanksgiving

David, giving thanks for the wondrous words of God, speaks the voice of thanksgiving (Ps. 26:7).

Daniel, the secret of Nebuchadnezzars dream revealed from heaven, gave thanks, saying; "I thank thee -- O God of my fathers, who -- hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee." (Dan. 2:23)

Nehemiah dedicated the wall of Jerusalem "With thanksgiving" -- appointing two great companies to "Give thanks." (Neh. 12)

Amos, exhorting Israel to repent, says: "Offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving." (Amos 4:5)

The Apostles, who suffered persecution, gave thanks that they were "Counted worthy to suffer shame for Jesus' name." (Acts 5:41)

Jesus was thankful for Calvary sufferings. That night, within the shadow of the cross looming darkly immediately ahead, He "gave thanks". With a song on His lips He went to His agony in Gethsemane -- and to the cross.

But we should think, of the ingratitude of...

What guilty forgetting of yours...if you forget the Christ! No gratitude, but only abuse, is shown in passing Christ by. What ingrates we are...if we fail to keep afresh the memory of mighty things Christ has done for us.

To spurn the diamond of His Salvation for the paste jewel of a Christ-rejecting life is folly and wickedness. To forget the Christ who died on the cross to take away our sin. Jesus, "endured the cross, despising the shame thereof." (Heb. 12:2). Would you insult His love and mercy and become one who are, "despisers of those that are good?" (II Tim. 3:3). The Bible says, "that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance" (Rom. 2:4)

"History knows no disaster," said the literary digest, Sept. 15, 1923, "which parallels the earthquake and fire that visited Japan this month and laid waste the capital city and the chief seaport."

The New York Tribune called this earthquake "Undoubtedly the greatest disaster in recorded time." The New York Times described the havoc as covering about 45,000 square miles which contained five big cities and population of 7,000,000. Other dispatches reported that virtually every building in Yokohama was destroyed...Perhaps three-fourths of Tokyo was burned and the entire city with its 5,000,000 inhabitants was shattered by the earthquake.

A joint survey made by Herbert Hoover and the Red Cross estimated the dead at almost 300,000 with 2,500,000 homeless. Disease and despair rode throughout the island empire. Then help came! Help from America for helpless Japan! Food, clothing, medical supplies and volunteer workers came by the shipload. The American Red Cross collected ten million dollars from people in the United States for the suffering Japanese.

Those who lived through the awful tremors, the gigantic waves, and the fires must perish it seemed from starvation and disease. But they didn't. Why? Because America remembered...remembered their need, their suffering, their hunger.

The Japanese were grateful. They even put their appreciation in writing. Walter Kierman, correspondent for International new Service, recalls their words. "Japan will never forget."

But Japan did forget! American ships of mercy were forgotten, and the rising sun sent planes of destruction in return. On Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese airplanes brought death and destruction to Pearl Harbour...and the Rising Sun proclaimed that America, brought to her knees, would beg for mercy.

But are the Japanese the only ones who overlook past mercies? Long ago the Lord said of Israel, "My people have forgotten me days without number." (Jer. 2:32). God blessed them, but they forgot God! "Remember, thy Creator, in the days of thy youth."

"Give thanks unto the Lord, for His mercy endureth forever."

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found. Call ye upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts. Let him return unto the Lord, for He will have mercy upon him and will abundantly pardon."

I would be thankful

I would be thankful, Lord, for THY great love;
The tenderness in every precious thing
Adorning earth; for oil of joy and tears -
For happiness that words of kindness bring.
For quiet moments with Thy word of Life;
For strength that comes with every whispered prayer.
For voice that sings beneath a sunlit sky
For sympathy when sorrows clouds are there.
For broken bread and wine, the symbols of
The perfect grace, the refuge of soul;
Unworthy though I am, I thank Thee, Lord,
For earth to love and heaven for my goal.

REPORT FROM PARLIAMENT

by William C. Scott, M.P.

The escalation of the Iraq-Iran border war is threatening to plunge Canada and the United States into our third major energy crisis in less than ten years.

This latest threat to our offshore sources of crude points up once again the vital necessity for energy self-sufficiency in Canada, and for a national energy policy that would remove, or at least minimize, the impact on Canada of political instability in other parts of the world.

In the last few days the war has centred on the ports of Basra in Iraq and Abadan in Iran, from where oil produced by the two countries is shipped via the Persian Gulf to the rest of the world, including Canada.

Canada imports 30 per cent of its crude oil requirements, a large part of which comes from Iraq and a lesser amount from Iran. We can get along without the Iranian oil, but if our present imports of Iraqi oil are curtailed through destruction of Iraq's oil refineries, or closure of the Persian Gulf ports, then Canada could be in serious trouble.

Fortunately, this latest crisis comes at a time when there is a surplus of foreign oil stored in Western countries. If the Iran/Iraq war is not prolonged, it is estimated that Canada has sufficient reserves on hand to last from 70 to 90 days.

After that is used up, and if the oil has not begun to flow from Iraq again within the next couple of months, then fuel rationing in Canada is virtually a certainty.

This situation imposes a serious responsibility on the federal government, one that will require a re-examination of its present priorities, and a reversal of its policy of confrontation between Ottawa and our oil-producing provinces.

Prime Minister Trudeau must set aside, at least for the moment, his plans to force Constitutional reform through Parliament. As I have said before, his timetable is unrealistic, and his methods are open to question.

In light of the continuing uncertainty as to the availability of off-shore crude oil supplies, Parliament should be concerning itself right now with the question of what we can do to reduce Canada's dependency on any and all foreign energy sources.

An early oil-pricing agreement between Ottawa and Alberta and Saskatchewan is a logical and necessary first step in getting oil flowing at an adequate level from our own sources, and in getting the Oil Sands projects back on track.

Afterwards, all parties in the House of Commons, all provincial governments, and sufficient experts from the private sector are going to have to get together and work out an energy program that will eventually shield Canadians from the effects of events that occur thousands of miles from our shores.

In the face of these and other serious problems facing Canada today I cannot give a very high priority to Constitutional reform.

The streets are for the people.
Exercise your rights.

One of the election rumours which has been floating around Stanhope Township was effectively squelched by Minden Reeve Sinc Nesbitt by his announcement that he would seek re-election in Minden.

Rumour had it that Stanhope's former Reeve would seek election in Stanhope, but when we discussed the subject with Sinc recently he emphatically disposed of any such talk. In his characteristic way, Reeve Nesbitt left no doubt in our mind that the statement was just another invention without any foundation, and that he had great respect for Stanhope's Reeve Jim Harrison and a warm feeling for Stanhope.

He stated flatly that in his opinion "Jim Harrison has done an outstanding job and that Stanhope could be best served by keeping Harrison as Reeve for another term". We feel that Nesbitt's friends in Minden will be pleased that he is still interested in serving their municipality.

A recently received letter from Dr. T. G. Brydges, Water Resources Branch of the Ministry of the Environment, provides the following information re Stanhope lakes and the acid rain threat:

"Maple and Beech Lakes have a satisfactory buffering capacity and are not considered sensitive. This is due to the geologic formations surrounding and underlying those lakes being such as to provide a satisfactory alkaline presence.

"Big Hawk Lake, Little Hawk Lake, Hall's Lake, and Kushog Lake are low in alkalinity and are considered sensitive. This is due to the granite formations in which these lakes occur, such formations contributing very little alkalinity or buffering capacity to neutralize the acid fallout."

These facts are not to be considered a reason for panic, but do indicate the need for alert attention to each of those lakes. Boshkung and Kabakwa (Peach) Lakes are said to be somewhere between the afore mentioned lakes, having a reasonable buffering capacity.

As we have said, it is not a panic situation but Stanhope may have to give some thought to future procedures to preserve the lakes. We have been asked about the effect of the unusual amount of rainfall this past summer and its effect on the precipitation of acid fallout. Dr. Brydges informs us that this situation has "supplied more acids from the atmosphere than usual." The acidic components of the precipitation may have lowered the PH (increased the acidity) of most sensitive lakes and streams temporarily."

We offer this information as such and remind our readers that the situation is not one for panic, but is one for reasoned study, and we think it is being handled that way.

We have recently seen a Chamber of Commerce questionnaire which is intended to be directed to the area municipal candidates for Council or four the Board of Education. In our opinion this is rather a perplexing type of document.

Some of the questions defy an answer in that they imply action that is beyond the normal concerns of a political person or body, or should be until they are invited to intervene on a specific matter. Question 6 is typical in that it asks candidates what specific steps they would suggest to meet the legitimate concerns of those who would oppose economic development including manufacturing. How can anyone answer that question without knowing what the specific concern is and whether or not it is a legitimate concern.

Candidates could not be blamed if they responded to such a question by asking that the problem be clarified before an answer is forthcoming. Some of the questions could be better answered by Chamber members since they deal with matters that can best be answered by the enterprisers themselves.

Other questions would ask local politicians what the role of the Chamber should be in presenting viewpoints to various levels of government. Surely the individual members are more capable in this respect than individual candidates for Township Councils, after all it is their problems which are at issue.

Talking to Roads Overseer Marvin Brown with regard to the township roads, he informed us that besides a ditching program and placing several road signs, the roads staff has completed two and a half miles of priming, plus one and a half miles of hard surfacing. Mr. Brown referred to the recently acquired steamer and also the patching machine, and pointed out that past problems with frozen culverts would be minimized by the use of the steamer.

claimed, that here there are more barriers to trade than there are among the countries of Europe. The traditional understanding that Canadian citizens all have equal access to the country's bounty and physical beauty and job opportunities from coast to coast just doesn't apply any more.

This then in my view is one of the major problems facing Canada. A problem so serious according to some top Ottawa and Ontario officials that it surpasses the Quebec problem because it threatens not just the separation of a single province, but the complete disintegration of the country.

Our BNA Act is very vague when compared with what the United States, India, and Australia have, where trade, commerce and intercourse throughout their territories is free.

Perhaps one of the problems is that many people today do not fully understand or appreciate the implications of the Constitutional talks. If we sit still and do nothing about it and then turn our back on this need, then Canada and especially Ontario will be the big loser.

Recently I spoke on the fate of Confederation to the Rotary Club of Lindsay. If you would like a copy of my remarks, I would be pleased to provide a copy. Simply phone my constituency office and they will look after it for you.

by Ron Reid of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists

Even a naturalist has to admit that some species of wildlife under the wrong circumstances can become pests. But many nuisance species, such as starlings and pigeons in our cities, and smelt and alewives in our lakes, share one thing in common: they are wildlife introduced by man, in areas outside their natural range. Lacking the natural checks and balances to control their population, these so-called "exotic" species can quickly reach numbers that create a nuisance.

Even with this history as a guide, it appears that we could be about to create a new pest species in Ontario. A furry member of the fox family, called a raccoon dog, has just made its first appearance on an Ontario fur farm near Cookstown, with the importation of 135 animals from Finland. Raccoon dogs are native to southeast Asia but because of their valuable pelts, which are marked much like our native raccoons, they have been bred in captivity across Russia, Poland, Austria and Finland.

The problems arise when these raccoon dogs escape into the wild, as they have in these other countries. Because they appear to be able to establish themselves successfully, the problems of crop damage, poultry predation, and spread of rabies soon become evident. As well, raccoon dogs compete with and often displace natural predators such as Ontario's red foxes, disrupting the natural ecosystem.

Incredibly, there appears to be no regulation to stop the importation of these potential pests, as long as they meet federal health standards. A proposed law to control the import and export of exotic wildlife has been on the back burner since 1968, when it was recommended by both the federal and provincial governments. This procrastination could cost us dearly, and even now the proposed law should be brought into effect as soon as possible to prevent recurrences of this problem.

In the case of the raccoon dogs, the only option now appears to be a negotiated settlement, to rid Ontario of this species before it escapes, and to compensate the owners for their direct expenses. As the fur farm owners point out, they have acted within the existing law, with all the necessary permits. But until that law can be changed, it would be less risky, and probably less expensive, for government to pay the costs of destroying the animals now than trying to control the danger of escaped animals in the future.

Log truck rolls - passenger killed

One man is dead following a truck accident Friday on the Peterson Road in Harcourt Township.

According to police, Dennis Musclow of Bancroft was driving a 1972 Chevrolet stake truck down a steep hill when the brakes failed. In attempting to negotiate a curve to the right the vehicle left the road, losing its load of logs, and came to rest on the passenger's side.

Dead is Edward John Musclow of Bancroft, a passenger in the truck. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Bancroft Hospital.

Constable Bob Wood of the Minden OPP investigated the incident.

$1500 damage

A single car accident on the Bark Lake Road near Gooderham resulted in $1500 damage to a 1972 model Valiant.

Beatrice I. Reil, 53, of Gooderham was travelling south on the road when a tire on the right side of the car deflated. The car swerved into the west ditch, coming to rest on its side.

The mishap was investigated by Constable Bob Wood.

North Shore Road

One driver's attempt to avoid hitting a dog on the road resulted in over $900 damage to two vehicles.

Brian A. Smith, 20, of Oshawa was travelling east on the North Shore Road. Following was Harold F. Porter, 17, of Minden.

As Smith rounded a curve in the road he applied the brakes suddenly in an effort to miss an animal on the road. The Porter car slid into the rear of the Smith car.

Damage to the Porter vehicle was estimated at $850 while the other car sustained $100 damage.

Considering the alternatives

There is a nip in the air...September has melted into October and the cool winds from the north foretell the arrival of the first snows of winter.

It is a time for harvesting, for preparing for the cold months ahead. It is also a time when many people consider the possibility of cutting back on the cost of keeping their homes and offices warm. The natural choice in Haliburton County is the fuel the pioneers of the Highlands found readily at hand...wood.

With this in mind, the next five pages of The Times have been prepared to clear away the mystique of heating with wood and help those shopping for a new wood stove to consider the alternatives. Read on...a warm winter awaits you.

CHIP helps you save heating $

Now is the time to think about insulating your home before winter arrives in full force, and the Canadian Home Insulation Program can assist consumers in this task.

In Ontario, the Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) will pay for one hundred percent of the cost of insulating materials for single detached homes, up to a maximum $350, and one-third of labour costs, up to $150. This taxable grant applies to permanent residences which were built prior to 1961.

For application forms call 365-6000 (Toronto) or 1-800-268-1818 (outside Toronto) or write to CHIP, P.O. Box 1270 Station T, Toronto, Ontario M6B 4A4. Only certain types of houses insulated with CMHC-accepted materials are eligible for the grant, so it's advisable to check the CHIP regulations before you insulate.

If you are hiring an insulating firm to do the job, it is best to obtain three estimates. Be wary of firms which estimate unusually low labour charges or recommend excessive insulation to take advantage of the entire grant.

When you have decided on one contractor, get the agreement in writing specifying the amount and type of insulation and total cost of labour and materials, including your portion if the remainder is to be paid by a grant. Agree on a definite completion date, and try to have the contractor clean up after the job is finished.

Even if you do not qualify for a grant, the CHIP office offers a useful booklet called "How To Insulate Your Home and Cut Your Fuel Bills by More Than One-Third".

If you have questions about how to insulate or which type of materials to use, the Enersave Heatline may help. You can call them toll free at 1-800-267-9563, during business hours.

The Enersave office can also provide a number of free publications to assist in energy conservation. Of particular interest to homeowners are "Keeping the Heat In", a guide to insulating, "The Billpayer's Guide to Furnace Servicing" and "100 Ways to Save Energy and Money in the Home".

Proper thinning improves forest productivity

The cry, "Woodsmen, spare that tree!" though it has a romantic and, for some, an emotional ring to it, has long lost its validity.

While there are magnificent examples of various species of trees that deserve to be preserved, judicious and careful thinning of a woodlot can enhance the productivity of a forest. In this regard a woodlot is much like a vegetable garden. The crop is not beans and peas, but rather cords of wood that represent value in heat. Just as a garden must be weeded and, as the plants mature, the rows thinned, so the growth in a forest stand must be cut back.

The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has forest management experts who can assist the wood lot owner in determining which trees should be culled. These services are available through the local Minden office, at 286-1521.

For those who wish to proceed on their own, here are some ideas on what trees cull when thinning a woodlot.

-Trees that are dead, dying or diseased are certain candidates for the wood pile. These trees, if left standing, will eventually topple damaging other healthy ones in the area. A diseased tree also represents a hazard to other trees of the same species in the immediate area.

-Trees which have been damaged by wind or lightning.

-Trees that are crooked or growing on an angle. These are likely to fall before reaching maturity.

-In the competition for sunlight, certain trees will be caught under the canopies of surrounding trees. Cull these trees as their growth will continue to be stunted.

-"Weed" trees such as ironwood should be removed from the woodlot to give other, more desirable species a chance to grow.

-Over-mature trees which show signs of die-back at the tips of branches should be brought down. This will allow space for younger trees to grow.

-Owners of woodlots will attempt to develop a certain crop of trees, sugar maple for example. In such instances, other species of trees which are crowding the growth of the crop tree should be removed. As well, trees of the same species should be culled to give the healthy ones space in which to grow.

Careful cutting in a woodlot as small as ten acres should provide the owner with a continuous supply of fuelwood for his stove and a more healthy, vigorous forest.

Cords, face cords and standing trees

Firewood is sold and measured in a unit known as a cord.

A cord of wood has a volume of 128 cubic feet and is usually thought of as being a pile of wood four feet high, four feet deep and eight feet long.

Due to the irregularity of the pieces of wood as they are piled a cord of wood will contain generally between 80 and 90 cubic feet of solid wood even though the overall dimensions are equal to the figures above.

Businesses that sell firewood will often do so in "face cord" units. A face cord is less than a full cord and can vary in the actual dimensions or volume of wood. The term cord, is considered a legal measure and wood sold by this unit must meet the 128 cubic feet standard. The term face cord is not legally accepted measure of firewood.

Judging a standing tree for the amount of firewood it contains can be a difficult task. Often you won't really know how much wood a tree contains until it is cut, bucked and stacked. However, here is a general guide to help assess the quantity of wood contained in a tree.

Measure the diameter of the tree at chest height, including the bark. The number of inches will tell how many trees of a similar size will be needed to make a cord of wood. In the following chart the numbers on the left indicate the diameter in inches, the centre column is the number of hardwood trees required for a cord and the column on the right shows the number of softwood trees required to make a cord:

Hefting the chainsaw over the freshly fallen maple or feeling the bite of the stomach muscles the day after splitting three cords of knots, can make one wonder if this burning with wood is all it is cracked up to be.

For example, the following tongue in cheek accounting offers a humorous look at exactly how much it costs the average wood burner to laugh in the face of the OPEC cartel.

Some thoughts on looking for a wood stove

Up tight about air tight? Baffled about baffles? Feeling lost in the forest of new and traditional stoves flooding the market? Well, for one thing you are not alone.

Many people across the country are turning to wood heat as a supplement to traditional methods of keeping their homes, and even offices, warm through the winter season. And for those venturing into the world of wood heat for the first time, the array of models, sizes and features can make choosing the right model for your situation particularly confusing.

The first question anyone thinking of wood stoves should ask before buying is, Why do I want a wood stove?

The answers will basically fall into two categories...for heat or for aesthetics, and in some cases both.

Those only looking for the romantic glow of flickering flames on a blustery winter's eve should investigate the possibility of having a fire place built into a wall of their home. Fireplaces are noted for their inefficiency. In fact, in many homes they actually lower the average temperature, although those drawn up close to the hearth will benefit from the heat given off by the burning logs. Despite this seeming contradiction, there is certainly nothing more inviting than stretching out before a crackling fire.

But, more people are turning to wood as a method of beating the higher costs of conventional methods of heating the home. They are looking for wood burning units that will help reduce the heating bills.

How much heat?

Before purchasing a wood stove to provide heating for your home it is wise to ascertain just how much space you expect the stove to heat. Most stoves on the market today provide a rating which indicates the amount of space the unit can be reasonably expected to heat. This is usually expressed in square feet of floor area or in total cubic feet. Prior to entering any stove store you would be well advised to have one or both of these figures in hand.

Those people who have bought stoves without knowing the capacity they are looking for have discovered that the outer reaches of the home are untouched by the heat if they have bought a unit too small, or, in the case of a stove which is too large, they are forced to run it at such a slow burn to keep the temperature down to a reasonable level that serious creosote problems can result in the chimney.

Naturally, a stove's capacity to heat your home will depend on how well insulated the building is, where the unit is located in relation to passage ways and ducts that can carry the hot air to other portions of the building, the type of wood you burn, the efficiency of the chimney, among other factors. Matching the right stove to the right home obviously involves more than simply picking a unit that "will look nice in the corner."

How tight

Most stoves on the market today designed for home heating fall into the "air tight" category. This means the unit has been constructed in such a manner so as to permit you to control the amount of air reaching the fire. By controlling the air flow you control the rate of burn and thereby the amount of heat the stove gives off. This is important, particularly if you want to load a stove in the evening and have it carry the fire through the night.

An air tight stove should have a door that closes snugly, many are fitted with special door sealers that add to the closeness of the fit. There should not be any other holes or openings where air can leak in. A simple test for determining if the door indeed closes tightly enough is to trap a piece of paper in the opening by closing the door. If you can pull the paper free, the door does not close snugly enough.

Air tight stoves will have devices for regulating the amount of air reaching the fire. Some of these are mechanical, operating on the heat given off by the stove. The majority, however, have simple screw devices, sliding doors or flaps that can be changed to regulate the flow. Simplicity reduces the chance of break-down.

An air tight stove permits a more efficient use of the wood you have cut or purchased. But it should be noted that continuous use of a stove with the air inlet turned down as low as possible could result in dangerous creosote build-up in the chimney.

Other features you should look for when considering the purchase of a wood stove include:

-What size is the firebox and the door opening? This can be particularly critical if you are buying your wood from someone else...18 inch pieces will just not fit in a 12 inch fire box.

-Does the stove load easily. Does the firebox hold enough wood to allow the stove to provide heat all night long? Can the ashes be removed easily, cleanly and safely?

-Check the thickness of the metal walls of the stove. Even those lined with firebrick should have a thickness of at least 1/4 inch. (Some cast stoves may have an outer and inner wall of less than the 1/4 inch minimum each. This is generally an acceptable combination.)

-Radiant heating or convection? A stove can heat the air in your house by either of these methods. Radiant heating means the hot sides of the stove heats the air around the unit and this air is dispersed throughout the house. Some stoves have built-in ducts through which the cold air on the floor is drawn up and around the stove liner, emerging at the top as hot air. The stove using convection is generally cooler to the touch and is considered safer where there are small children who may attempt to touch the stove.

-Does the manufacturer provide a guarantee? Will the servicing be done by the retailer, in your own home?

-And finally, price. Wood stoves vary in price from just over $100 to over $2000. The models at the lower end of the scale, through inexpensive are, in most cases a dubious buy. The units close to $2000 and above are so loaded with extras and decorations and are really only designed for highly specialized needs. An individual with an average sized home should be able to find a suitable, good quality stove for heating in the $300 to $600 range.

There are numerous other features that can be included with your stove purchase. Finding your way through the maze can be difficult. For that reason alone you should choose the retailer who sells you the stove as carefully as you choose the stove. He should be able to answer most of your inquiries about the stove, provide you with accurate detailed descriptions of how the stove can and cannot be used and install or recommend a qualified person who can install your unit.

Before making your purchase it is wise to check with someone who has been using the same model in which you are interested. Are they satisfied with the stove's operation? What are its shortcomings and where did it not live up to the predictions of the salesman or information material?

Heating with wood gives one a feeling of satisfaction. It is a feeling that comes from knowing you are able to provide some of your own essential needs without having to rely on the whims and fancies of more conventional forms of energy.

If you must cut-cut the best

Now, what about all this wood you have stored in the garage or wood shed? What is it really worth?...no, not in the dollar and cents you paid for it, but in its heating value.

There are some who might think that all wood is the same. Such is not the case. Different species of trees produce differing qualities of wood, some that burn longer and hotter than others.

Being aware of which trees will deliver more heat per cord could save you a great deal of cutting and splitting. The following chart outlines how the various common trees stack up on a per cord, air dried basis.

The heating value of the wood is expressed in BTUs (British Thermal Units). A British Thermal Unit is the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water, one degree Fahrenheit.

The equivalent value in number two heating oil, expressed in gallons, is also indicated. The heating oil currently sells for 85 cents per gallon.

Safe operation essential with wood burning stoves

With any heating device, no matter how it is fired, safety should be a foremost consideration. This is especially true when using wood.

With most wood burning devices, the automatic controls which govern the operation of oil burners or gas heaters do not exist. Much of the wood stove's operation depends on the judgement of the individual or individuals charged with keeping the fires well banked.

There are many sources one can turn to for details on the safe installation and operation of wood burning devices. Included in these are books which give a thorough grounding in wood stove operation, the municipal fire department and building inspectors who are aware of the various safety regulations, the manufacturer's instructions which are based on tests carried out by those who built the wood stove, the retailer who sold the unit and the federal government, central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has prepared a useful booklet which covers all aspects of wood stove safety. The booklet is entitled "Heating with Wood-Safely" and is available from CMHC free of charge. Write to CMHC in Ottawa to request your copy.

The following list is by no means considered to be a comprehensive one, however we have attempted to cover some of the main points regarding the safe operation of a home wood stove. Keep these in mind when choosing, installing and using your wood stove.

-Generally speaking the use of "add-ons", wood burning units that use existing heating ducts and operate in conjunction with oil or gas fired furnaces, has been discouraged. Temperatures from wood stoves can run much higher than those generated in these conventional heating devices and the duct work and other fixtures may not be designed to handle these high temperatures. In addition, problems with venting the two units though the same chimney have been encountered. Certainly retain your oil or gas fired furnace as a back-up, but don't attempt to operate a conventional heating system and a wood fired heating system as one integrated unit.

-Select a stove that is the right size for the heat you require. A unit which is too small will need constant stoking to deliver the required heat. It will have to be operated at a high temperature and this can result in damage to the stove or the danger of fire to adjacent combustible material. A stove that is too large for the area it is heating will also create problems. Damping the fire to control the heat will result in a slow burn and increase the build-up of creosote in the chimney.

-The location of your stove is an important factor, particularly if it is to occupy a place in the living quarters of the home. Make sure the stove is not placed near an exit. If a problem should arise, the stove may be blocking the only easy means of exit. Proper distance from combustible material should be maintained. The manufacturer's installation instructions should provide a guide for proper clearances.

-The chimney is also an important area of concern. If you plan on using an existing chimney, ensure it can withstand the high temperatures and constant use a wood stove will create. Proper clearances and venting is required where the stove pipe passes through a ceiling or wall.

-The chimney should also be inspected and cleaned on a regular basis. Creosote is given off in the burning of most kinds of wood. This by-product can reduce the effectiveness of a chimney by partially blocking the passageway and is the material which feeds chimney fires. To avoid creosote build-up it is wise to: use only well seasoned hardwood; burn dry wood in a hot small fire instead of a large smouldering fire; use short stove pipe leading to the chimney; use a flue lined chimney.

-A number of stoves on the market have been tested by the Canadian Standards Association of Underwriters' Laboratories. These markers indicate the units have undergone the rigorous testing of these organizations. However, because the wood stove market is a relatively new one and many manufacturers have not had their units tested (tests are voluntary) the standards are not common throughout the industry. If in doubt about the safety of a particular unit it would be wise to check with a owner who has used a similar brand for a complete heating season. Experience is the best teacher and when you can't get it first hand, tap those of others who have the experience.

Read and burn

Read everything you wanted to about wood stoves? Or perhaps you were aware of most of the information we have compiled here about burning with wood. If such is the case, don't throw this newspaper out, burn it!

Newspaper is just about the universal fire starting material. Everyone knows you lay down a nest of crumpled newspapers to get kindling aflame. However, were you aware that newspapers can also be a substitute for some of the heavier wood you are burning?

Rolled into a tight log shape, newspaper delivers as much heat as a piece of wood the same size. This can be an important addition to your wood budget, particularly if you enjoy the weekend editions of the Toronto papers.

The trick is simply to lay many sheets of newspaper evenly in a pile and, grab one end firmly in both hands and begin to roll it as one would when putting away a large map. Securely held with a wire, the newspaper log is ready to burn. Since the paper is held so tightly together it will not burn as readily as the crumpled nest of newspaper. You'll need a good bed of coals to get the newspaper log to burn, but once it is lit it will flame and smoulder until all that remains is ash.

Mechanical rollers, which are an assist in rolling tighter, "neater" logs are available from most stores dealing in wood burning equipment.

One note of caution, according to the monthly publication Organic Gardening, (October 1980), coloured ink, other than black, can give off toxic gases when burned. They suggest you keep the funnies and other coloured paper away from the fire and leave the job to the black and white press.

Another cup, please

Does your day not start until you've had that first cup of coffee? Do you get headaches or become cranky after a long time without a cup of coffee?

If your answer to these questions is yes, it is likely you, like many people around the world, are "hooked" on caffeine.

The following report, prepared by Leslie Orpana, nutrition consultant with the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit, examines what caffeine is and the effect it has on the body.

When first introduced, coffee was considered an intoxicating beverage, dangerous to one's health. Despite this, coffee has proceeded to become one of the most popular beverages in the world. This enthusiastic acceptance of the coffee bean has had its price. Controversy once again surfaces over the health aspects of coffee, and the debate centres on caffeine.

Caffeine, called "The world's drug of choice", is a highly stimulating chemical compound (1,3,7 - trimethylxanthine) which occurs naturally in coffee beans, tea leaves, kola nuts and cocoa beans. Theophylline and theobromine are two closely related derivatives, also found in the same sources. Caffeine is also found as an additive in cola type beverages and in several types of over-the-counter drug preparations.

Caffeine is rapidly absorbed from the gastrointestinal tract, reaches peak blood levels in about one hour and is excreted as another compound in the urine. The body can clear out all traces of caffeine in eight hours - one reason why heavy coffee drinkers wake up craving an early morning cup. It is addictive in that users deprived of it can suffer withdrawal symptoms such as chronic depression, headaches and "the shakes", but unlike other addictive drugs regular consumption does not diminish its stimulant effect.

What are its effects?

Doses of 50-200 mg (approx. 1-2 cups brewed coffee) are observed to increase alertness and decrease drowsiness. Doses of above 200 mg. may produce "caffeinism", resulting in headaches, tremors, nervousness and irritability.

Caffeine causes narrowing of the blood vessels, this makes the heart work harder to pump the blood through. However, no significant relationship is evident between daily coffee ingestion and incidence of heart attack.

150-200 mg. caffeine taken shortly before bedtime prolongs the time required to fall asleep. The elderly are particularly affected as one's tolerance to caffeine declines with age. They experienced decreased deep sleep, take longer to fall asleep and don't sleep as soundly.

Nerves in the stomach are stimulated and the release of stomach secretions creates an empty, hungry feeling. This could increase the desire to eat and could be detrimental for weight watchers.

Caffeine for children

The effects of the dosage of caffeine is related to body size and weight. When a child drinks a 12 oz. can of cola beverage, caffeine intake is comparable to adults drinking four cups of instant coffee. Some pediatricians have expressed concern over

"caffeinism" in children stemming from excessive consumption of cola beverages and chocolate.

Early stages of reproduction may be influenced by caffeine. The caffeine molecule is related to the DNA molecule - the so-called key of life. It can mimic two vital parts of the DNA molecule. Animal studies show that caffeine can confuse the DNA molecule enough to produce cleft palates and missing digits in newborns.

To test if you are getting more caffeine than you should, remove all sources of caffeine from the diet for one day. If a throbbing headache results one day later that is only relieved by more caffeine, then chances are you are suffering from caffeine withdrawal.

Desirable levels

Non-pregnant adult: - more than 3-4 cups per day could be medically harmful.

-try decaffeinated coffee and tea or juice, milk at next coffee break.

Pregnant woman: - limit consumption as much as possible to put fetus in a "no risk" position.

-turn coffee break into a "milk" break.

Children: - replace cola beverages and chocolate with nutritious, low sugar snacks such as cheese, fruit, muffins, unsweetened juices, milk.

Breast feeding mother: - as caffeine is easily passed into the milk to the nursing infant, high levels of caffeine would have a stimulating effect. Decaffeinated coffee and tea would help to lower caffeine levels.

Drug store break-in

The Cauldron Pharmacy in Haliburton has once again been the target of thieves.

Intruders broke into the store on Sunday removing $2300 worth of goods, including a quantity of drugs. Some $70 in property was discovered some distance from the main street store.

The break-in is being investigated by Constable Boyd Jarvis.

Getting rid of uninvited guests

The houseplants you're bringing inside for the winter could be housing insects and plant diseases, advises Bob Fleming, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

"During the summer, houseplants which are kept outside are exposed to a variety of insects and diseases. Once inside, these problems can spread to other houseplants," says Mr. Fleming.

Check houseplants carefully before taking them into the house. If there is a white, powdery coating on leaves, your plant has mildew. Pick off and destroy the affected leaves, and spray the plant with a fungicide such as benlate or benomyl.

Your houseplants can also be attacked by a variety of insects during the summer outdoors. Most of these pests can be eliminated with diazinon, says Mr. Fleming.

One such pest is the whitefly. Tap the plant gently and if a white cloud of insects flutters around the leaves your plant is infected.

If there are tiny, cotton-like balls in the axils of the leaves, your plant probably has mealybugs. These pests are a serious problem because they suck the sap from the plant and reduce plant vigor.

Mites are microscopic and difficult to diagnose. Moderately infected plants will have a generally unthrifty appearance. Severely infected plants will have damaged, papery leaves.

"Because most of these problems are difficult to identify, spray the houseplants with insecticide as a precautionary measure," says Mr. Fleming.

To make sure outdoor pests don't infect all your plants, isolate the incoming plants for a week to 10 days.

The cones are on Jay and Carole

Two classes from Archie Stouffer Elementary School will soon be descending on the Dixie Lee Chicken outlet on the Minden by-pass to claim their free ice cream cones.

The treat was the result of some colourful artwork by one of their fellow students.

Jay Garbutt, a grade three student in Mrs. Newell's class, and Carole Lacey, of Mrs. Chamber's grade six class, were named the winners of the school bus safety colouring contest. Their colourful efforts earned them and their classmates a free ice cream cone each courtesy of Dixie Lee Chicken. In addition Jay and Carole have also won chicken dinners for their entire family at Dixie Lee.

The students had clipped the coupon appearing in the September 24 edition of The Times. The entrants coloured the cartoon above and those in the senior grades had to add a new caption to the drawing. Carole's suggested line was, "Meet my bodyguard."

The contest was held in conjunction with School Bus Safety Week marked by the Canadian Safety Council from September 24 to 30. The purpose being to draw to students' attention and that of drivers, the rules regarding safe school bus operation.

The winners and their fellow classmates will be taken to Dixie Lee, by school bus naturally, courtesy of Deacon Brothers, and treated to their cones in the near future.

The judges, in selecting the winners, also singled out a number of entries for honourable mention. These include submissions from Tina Pringle, Ken Beers, David Lacey, Laurie Smith, JoAnne Stamp, Richard Beers and Stephen Stevens. Thanks to all those who entered and have a safe year on the school buses.

Douglas Peter Robinson and Karrie Louise Clendenning joined hands in Holy Matrimony at St. Paul's Anglican Church Minden, Saturday, September 6, 1980. A reception, following the ceremony, was held at the Minden Community Centre. The honeymoon couple toured the United States for a week and have now taken up residence in Minden.

Farm News and Views

Annual meetings of farm organizations are underway again.

The first such meeting in Victoria County each year is the Federation of Agriculture. This year the Federation is meeting on Thursday, October 9 at 8:00 p.m. in the Conference Room at the Lindsay Agricultural Office.

With close to 500 members, the Federation is the largest farm organization in Victoria County. It's unfortunate that only about 20 members are actively involved in their monthly meetings.

At this annual meeting the directors for the next year will be elected. From these directors the officers for the coming 2 years are selected. These are the people who will determine the activities and lead the Federation.

If you are interested in ensuring that the Federation of Agriculture continues to provide a strong voice for farmers in Victoria County, then be sure to attend the annual meeting.

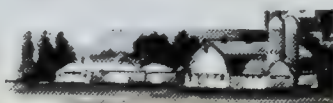

The Victoria County Cream Producers Assoc. will be holding their annual meeting on Monday, October 20 at Ops Community Centre, starting at 8:00 p.m.

W.I. bus trip

The Travelways Bus chartered by Minden Women's Institute left at 8:30 on October 1 on a lovely fall day with some colour showing in the trees along the way to Cullen Gardens north of Whitby. Here, all enjoyed the walk along the paths between the flower displays and the miniature homes. These little buildings were exact in detail, with even street lights, traffic lights changing, items on display in the tiny windows, a model train ran on tracks amid the village and there were bridges over the little streams.

Flowers and shrubs were everywhere, and the scent of roses was all around. How can one describe the beauty of it all? Down the hill and over the bridge, one could see the swans and further along the peacocks.

After everyone had their tour and their noon meal, the genial bus driver, Jack Barley, drove to Oshawa centre and left those wishing to shop. Then some of the passengers stayed on board and went through the grounds of Parkwood, residence of Col. R.S. McLaughlin. This year we finally saw the grand gardens, especially the Italian Garden as it was a lovely day.

The bus then returned to the Centre and those on board went shopping and had dinner.

We left at 7 and were homeward bound, too dark to see the scenery but everyone seemed to have had a very enjoyable day.

Task force

The details of a Canada-Ontario task force to study sulphur emission control in the Sudbury basin have been announced by Canadian Environment Minister, John Roberts and Dr. Harry Parrott, Ontario Environment Minister.

As part of the Ontario control program for INCO and the Sudbury Basin announced May 1, by Dr. Parrott, the task force will do a complete and independent assessment of the possible technologies to further reduce emissions.

Task force members will focus on the emissions from operations of INCO Ltd. and Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. in Sudbury.

"They will not be recommending a specific course of action. Rather they will be reporting on the environmental, economic and social consequences of alternative abatement options," said Dr. Parrott.

"The INCO control order I announced was only the first step. The recommendations of the task force will provide the information upon which to base further control orders."

Mr. Roberts said, "This task force will be an integral part of the Canadian fight against acid rain. Further emission reductions at Sudbury can only strengthen our position at the international bargaining table."

In most gorgeous colours are seen.

All the community sends good wishes to these people who are in hospital or have returned home, Audrey Currie, Eleanor Walker, Mrs. Lawrence McKnight, Yvonne Beaucage, Florence Robinson, Carrie Jones and Vic Martin. May they all be on the road to recovery.

We hear that the Priors have sold the Bakeshop to Lorna Hicks, and are appreciative of the town's patronage and hope they continue with the new owner.

Lynn and Wayne Cox are very happy on the arrival of their baby girl last week.

Mrs. Jim Beattie had as her guests last week, her sister Minnie Low of Toronto and another sister Jessie and brother-in-law Stuart from Scotland.

Winners at the weekly Mini Card Party St. Paul's Parish Hall last Thursday were for cribbage, Cora Hewitt and Nettie Wilson and for euchre lone hands Della Griffin and others Clare Brooks and Jeanne Sears.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Coulter and Mrs. Floyd Miller enjoyed a visit one day last week with the Uptons at Uttersen and also Cora's lumpy gravy.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Upton of Toronto spent the weekend at their summer home in the village.

Mrs. Laura Bird of Toronto spent several days last week with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bird and girls.

Wedding bells were ringing on Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. Lockie Crawford (nee Kathy Bull).

Weekend guests with the Glen Sears of Oshawa were Mr. and Mrs. M. Sears of this village and of course when we were away a cousin left a note that he had been here.

The Puppet Show on Saturday morning had a large crowd present, but too bad, there was only one story, they had forgotten the puppets for the second show.

Coming events are a Bake Sale at 10 at the shop beside Floyd Hall's. This is for the Library Cultural Centre and all donations of baking or other items are welcome. The second date for Figure Skating Registration is Oct. 18 at Municipal Hall upstairs from 12-2.

Just a note in passing we hope those summer visitors who still have books out from Haliburton County Branch Libraries would please return these before you close your cottage. Most branch libraries have book drops so this could be done on your way home.

Rather wet weather last week, with several frosts, the colour is great but if we get winds, the leaves will fall, but hopefully will last till Thanksgiving weekend. We are sure lucky, do you every say thanks? Take care and cheerio until next time.

The weather has been very nice this week and our residents at Hyland Crest have been enjoying it very much. Many have been out for walks or for a drive with friends to look at the colours.

Monday morning we had our regular fun and fitness program. Winnie Johnson was the winner at darts. This is quite an accomplishment for her as she has very little sight. In the afternoon several ladies went to the craft room to work on their projects.

After dinner there was a good turnout to watch the movies. "A Long Way From Tipperary" was all about the Legion. We saw how the Legion serves community needs all across Canada. The Legion sponsors and supports athletic clubs, hockey, football, baseball and track and field. In Prince Edward Island the Legion is responsible for a 24 bed hospital for handicapped children. They also donate more than $200,000 per year toward scholarships and bursaries. We saw also how the Legion looks after the welfare of the veterans and their families. Thousands of poppies are manufactured every year to remind Canadians of the cost of war.

"A Way of Life" introduced us to a farmer and his family. It showed us the difficulty in giving up farm life at retirement age, and the advantages of living in the country. The residents thoroughly enjoyed these two films. Tuesday morning Rev. Trevor Denny held service in the chapel. Mr. Fred Ballard was here to play the organ while we sang some inspirational hymns. In the afternoon several people gathered in the main lounge for a game of Bingo. Mrs. Rowbotham was just one one the lucky winners. Fred Ballard came back in the evening to entertain for music night. Several residents enjoyed the organ music and are looking forward to his next visit.

Wednesday evening was Games Night. The residents enjoyed playing euchre, crokinole, scrabble and poker with the help of the students from Haliburton Secondary School.

The Kinmount Baptist ladies brought an abundance of delicious sandwiches and squares for the Thursday tea party. As always the residents thoroughly enjoyed the good food and the visit from the ladies.

Friday was a special day for Tryphina Jenkins who celebrated her 91st birthday. Finnie was presented with a lovely cake by the kitchen staff and we all joined to sing Happy Birthday to her.

In the afternoon, Grace Coburn accompanied by Norma Barron on the piano led us in the sing song. It was a very relaxing way to end the week of activities at Hyland Crest.

Lines from Lutterworth by Jean Lacey

Hi! The trees are becoming very beautiful. The colours seem to be more vibrant this year.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lidster were up in the area visiting old friends.

The Janesens from Mississauga, were up visiting with the Roodenburgs.

The Frank Miles were up to their cottage over the weekend.

Heard that Hanmer (just south of Sudbury) had some snow, I guess we will be getting our share soon enough.

The Tom Miles were up to their cottage over the weekend.

Major and Mrs. Lewis will be going to Ottawa for a few days.

Anie and Frank Dunsford and Lisa were at a family reunion on the weekend.

There are new books at the Library, so do come in and see if there are some that you haven't read.

Harvest Gold
Folk in cities strive for wealth,
But why they do it puzzles me;
Not for peace of mind or health.
Or aught worthwhile that I can see.
The finest gold in my belief

Is sunshine on the ripened sheaf.

David Hope

Hint of the week
Feats with Meats - Roasts - A shallow pan is better than a deep one for roasting because it allows the heat to circulate around the roast. Instead of using a metal roasting rack, make a grid of carrot and celery sticks and place meat or poultry on it. The additional advantage-vegetables flavor the pan drippings. To prevent meat from scorching when roasting, place a pan of cold water in the oven.

Good order is the foundation of all things.
Take it easy. Bye for now.
God bless till next time.

IN MEMORIAM

MISCIO - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Mike Miscio, who passed away Sept. 25, 1972.

Life is not the same without you.

Sadly missed and always remembered.

IN MEMORIAM

STAMP - In loving memory of our dear son Leon George who was killed in a car accident on October 13, 1973.

Somewhere beyond the shadows,
Dwells a dear son of mine.
Whom I looked on as a treasure,
Whom I cherished as divine.
But God called the one I loved away
Forget you Leon I never will.
As years roll on, I miss you still.

The blow was great.
The shock severe.
I little thought the end was near.

Only those who have lost can tell
How sad is parting and no farewell.
But God in goodness comforts me.
To bear my bitter cross.
He is the only one who knows,
How heavy is my loss.

Sadly missed and always remembered by

Hazel, Jack, Kathy & Debbie

IN MEMORIAM

STAMP - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Ethel Louise Stamp, who passed away on October 12, 1963.

A million times we've needed you,
A million times we've cried.

If love could have saved you dear,
You never would have died.

Things we feel most deeply
Are the hardest things to say
Our dearest Mom we loved you
In a very special way.

If we could have one lifetime wish
One dream that could come true
We'd pray to God with all our hearts
For yesterday and you.

Sadly missed and always remembered by
